On a perusal of the records connected with the case and the Dy. Commrs. report, an endorsement was issued to the petrs to the effect that the village was not under Govt management, and that the question could not be usefully considered until the village lapsed to Govt.

The petrs pray that they made a personal representation to The Dewan in Kalale Camp on 26th Feby. 1914, and pray that after hearing them personally, the jodi village in question may be given over to the Temple. They add that as a reply to their petition presented to the Dewan on 26th Feby. 1914, the Inspng Dy. Commr issued an Order to them in June 1914 declining to grant their prayer.

In the ref. collection, it is said that Kalale Gunda Rao is the last surviving jodidar of the village of Tippahalli. It is not known what has become of this man, and whether the jodi village has reverted to Govt. May a report be called for from the Dy. Commr?

What is there objection to Rent that the village ever belonged to the temple. The personal inam was constituted so far back as 1878 in within the first few years of the late H.H. Krishnaraja Wadeyar's rule. It cannot not have been taken away from the temple and given as personal inam. Please bring up in person and read to me the Ver. papers relating to this Case.

Gundu Rao the last-surviving Jumdar is reported to be dead and the Jumdar village has since been resumed. The question now arises as to whether the prayer of the petitioner for ~~re~~ grant of the village as Jumdar to Kadaki mikantas owning temple at Kalale

A similar prayer was dealt with in My File no 46 of 1910, and as at the time Grounds Rao was alive the petitioners were informed that a consideration of the Subject was premature.

No merits of the question have also been discussed in the old File. Briefly put, there seems to be some reliable evidence for the petitioners' allegation that the village was granted as Sarvadhan to the temple by (late) Kantirava Narasaraja Wodeyar. It is alleged that this and the villages were resumed during the Mussulman regime. There is no doubt whatever that the temple had nothing to do with it. Since 1818 when it was granted as Peishkash to Nagesa Rao and Siva Rao. The petitioners pray now that the village has come back to Govt., it may be restored as Dharmadaya to the temple.

Royal family, it would be an recognition of the good-will which the temple is in, for a larger income. The temple is a large one and of some importance in the local history of Mysore and has a large following of devotees among the leading Tamil families. The grant of this income would mean that the Govt. give up its right to accretion of income to the extent of Rs 660 per annum at its maximum. Granting an inam of this value is an extraordinary act. The claim of the temple on the score of its having had this village as its inam formerly is quite shadowy. Whether this extraordinary grant is deserved or may be made should be carefully considered. The file may be circulated to
